

Ways to Celebrate

JOIN US IN RAISING AWARENESS, TOGETHER!

1.) START A CONVERSATION

Bring up learning disabilities and dyslexia with your employees, co-workers, family and friends. Many people struggle(d) with learning challenges are unidentified, so this is a great way to reach others and possibly even help better understand the struggles they might be facing.

2.) WEAR RED FOR DYSLEXIA

Deck out yourself and your colleagues, employees, friends and family in red for a day in October. Take a group photo of you and your colleagues, family and friends wearing red to support dyslexia. Use the hashtag #GoRedForDyslexia and post your photos on social media. <https://www.succeedwithdyslexia.com/go-red/>

3.) UNDERSTAND LEARNING DISABILITIES

Invite someone from our school, or another local organization, to share with you and your staff about learning disabilities and how they effect our community. We would be honored to share with you what we are doing to allow students to succeed and more about our programs.

4.) PARTNER

Volunteer by partnering with an organization, like Pace Brantley, or other worthy organizations to share your time-- Or make a donation to support the on-going good work happening in our community to support individuals with learning differences.
